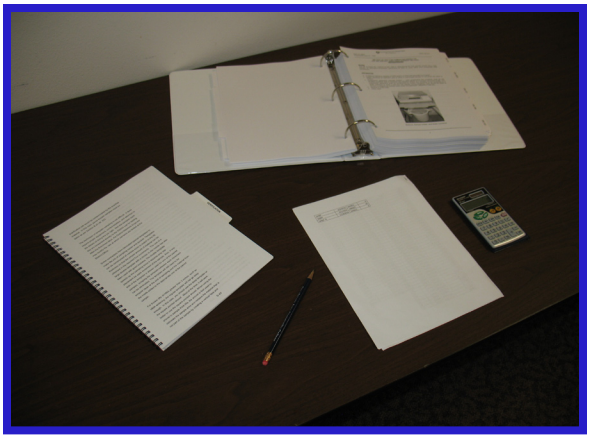
Introducing...a new way to recertify!

"Test-only day"

Do you have multiple certifications expiring this year, but a limited amount of time and travel budget? Are you an experienced technician who doesn't want to sit through a review session? If so, you may be interested in a new recertification option.

There are "test-only" days scheduled when a technician may come into a testing location and take as many different recertification tests as they wish, in any order they wish between the hours of 9:00 am and 5:00 pm. No exams will be started after 3:00 pm. The exams will be proctored and the proctor will grade your exam upon completion.

There will be no review given and no questions answered during the test only days!



Review Online

The information given at the recertification classes will now be available online for the following certifications:
