IOWA

The abundant heart of the Nation

In This State Called Iowa

If you're seeking scenic grandeur—mighty mountains capped with snow,
I'm afraid we'll disappoint you for we haven't one to show.
If you yearn for yawning chasms, if you seek a waterfall,
Stranger, we just can't produce them—we don't have such things at all.

When the Maker of Creation fashioned out this Hawkeye Land,
Mountains sheer and painted deserts didn't fit the task at hand.
He was building us a garden and for what He had in mind,
There must be abundant beauty, but of quite a different kind.

Have you seen a field of clover with its riot of red bloom?
You can duplicate those colors only with a magic loom.
Have you seen the silver ripples chase each other o'er the plain,
As the gentle summer breezes stir a field of ripening grain?

Have you seen a shimmering cornfield row on row in dress parade,
Dark green uniforms a-glitter, golden tassels for cockades?
Have you seen a herd of cattle grazing in some cool retreat,
Finding life quite to their liking, undisturbed by man's conceit?

In our peaceful land of plenty scenic grandeur won't be found,
But the beauty that we offer comes from deep within the ground.
Where the Greatest of all Chemists blending sunshine, soil and rain,
Through the ever changing seasons, makes the earth to bloom again.
